the Mexican government to extend protection to the Canal Development Company, an American concern, whose supplies at Mexicala, according to reports received here, are threatened with destruction by insurgents. It is on this plant that the Imperial Valley of California depends for its water supply. According to official information here there are from 500 to 700 federal soldiers in the neighborhood of Mexicali. and it is confidently expected that the Mexican government will order an adequate guard to the scene.

The disposition of the fifty Mexican federal coldiers who surrendered at Agua Prieta and are "in charge" of the commander of the American forces at Douglas presents an intricate problem for solution. The question whether or not these men should be held as prisoners is being discussed by officials here The general impression seems to be that there is no statute under which the United States can hold the soldiers, escountry does not recognize the existence of a state of war in Mexico. ### "Must All Burn for Money."

A new point of view was brought to sirable that a choice be promptly made, the attention of Mr. Kingsbury vesterand various members of the committee day in a letter from a man who deappear to have good reason to believe clared that "we must all burn for salesmen, and continued: "Every fire appears on the front page of our daily newspapers, morning, noon and night. Each front page costs $2,000 an issue. Count the different papers in the United States and sometimes abroad, and you will find that the average fire brings at least $75,000 worth of salesmanship. The more lives lost the larger the salesmanship. So we must all burn for money? Can you see? If the fire was not the salesman of the company the company would send out bills, the same as other business people, itemizing each risk, describing payment, etc. Every building has a different rate. The rates are made of risks, which are gathered by the underwriters."

More than two hundred small fire exstalled by order of Borough President McAneny in the City Hall, Courthouse and eighty being placed in each of the three buildings respectively.
